

Defend free speech.
Fight surveillance.
Support innovation.
eff.org/donate

Flock Searches for the LOLs | EFFector 38.16

Mass surveillance isn't a joke. But police are treating it like one when using automated license plate reader (ALPR) networks. In our latest EFFector newsletter, we're covering a new EFF report on how officers across the country are routinely logging completely nonsensical "reasons" for their Flock searches, including "LOL," "LMAO," and even (yuck) "Sexy."

JOIN OUR NEWSLETTER

For over 35 years, EFFector has been your guide to understanding the intersection of technology, civil liberties, and the law. This issue covers a settlement enshrining Meta's harmful surveillance into law, states pushing back against ALPR, and how police are turning our privacy into a punchline.

Prefer to listen in? EFFector is now available on all major podcast platforms. This time we're asking EFF's Adam Schwartz what has united people against Flock cameras — and how we can make sure that today's backlash leads to lasting change. You can find the episode and subscribe on your podcast platform of choice:

Privacy info. This embed will serve content from simplecast.com

Want to protect your right to digital privacy? Sign up for EFF's EFFector newsletter for updates, ways to take action, and new merch drops. You can also fuel the fight for privacy and free speech online when you support EFF today!

Discover more. Join our email list for EFF news, events, campaigns, and ways to support digital freedom.

POSTAL CODE (OPTIONAL)

EMAIL ADDRESS *

SIGN UP NOW

☐ I would like to join EFF's email list for EFF news, events, campaigns, and ways to support digital freedom.

ELECTRONIC FRONTIER FOUNDATION

eff.org

Creative Commons Attribution License