

ADVERTISEMENT

The San Francisco Standard

Subscribe

Sign in

Politics → | Power Play The Lurie Experiment Trump vs. CA Best City, Broken Gov

Politics

SF Dem Party chair who blocked key Flock vote got donation from surveillance backer

Nancy Tung spoke at a conference hosted by the camera company in the weeks before the vote.

San Francisco Democratic Party Chair Nancy Tung objects to disruptions to public comment during the board's Aug. 26 meeting. | Omar Rashad/The Standard

By Joe Fitzgerald Rodriguez

Politics Reporter

Published Sep. 28, 2026 at 12:42pm

Share

2

The same month she blocked a resolution calling for restrictions on Flock Safety, the chairperson of the San Francisco Democratic Party accepted a $10,000 donation from a tech mogul bankrolling the police department's surveillance deployment and spoke at a conference hosted by the firm.

Newly revealed public records show Nancy Tung, chair of the local party since 2024, used her officeholder account in early August to purchase airfare to a Flock conference in Atlanta.

Flock invited her to speak on San Francisco’s successful efforts against crime, Tung told The Standard.

Party board member Gordon Mar authored the resolution, which would have put Democrats on record calling for more restrictions on the use of Flock data. When Tung announced she blocked his resolution at the Democrats’ regular Aug. 26 meeting, he cried foul, pointing out that two Democratic Party board members who were Flock employees had failed to recuse themselves or even acknowledge their connections.

Tung works in the district attorney’s office and was not one of the Flock employees. She said at the meeting that she and another board member, Lily Ho, who was public affairs manager for the western U.S. for Flock as recently as last month, did not allow a vote on his resolution because it contained factual errors.

Sign in or create an account

Get access to this article with a free account

Your email address

email@example.com

Continue with email

_____ or _____

 Continue with Google

 Continue with Apple

By creating an account, you agree to The San Francisco Standard's Terms of Service and Privacy Policy

About Us
Staff
Standards & Ethics
Newsletters
Mobile App
Jobs
Contact Us
Tips
Advertising
Sign In
Paid Subscription
Subscription FAQs