

FRIDAY

OCTOBER 9, 2026

coloradopolitics

E-EDITION

NEWSLETTERS

ACCOUNT

LIVE NOW

Editorial Board's ballot picks

DPD affairs chief faces discipline

Sean Payton takes over play calling

OPINION

Flock camera paranoia handcuffs the police | Mike Rosen

By Mike Rosen

Published October 9, 2026 5:00am

Updated October 9, 2026 2:26pm

+ Add Denver Gazette on Google

We and certain third parties may use cookies or similar technologies to process data when you visit our sites. This data may relate to your use of our sites, your preferences, your device, or other information about you. We and third parties may use this information for a variety of purposes, such as enabling the sites to function, to personalize your experience when using our sites, to provide you with advertisements based on your interests, and for analytical purposes. Privacy Policy

Manage Cookies

Reject All

Accept All

Mike Rosen

One of the most popular formats on network television and streaming services like Netflix and Prime Video has been police and federal-agent crime-fighting dramas like “Law & Order”, “Blue Bloods” and “NCIS”. Within that category are formats like “Chicago PD” and “FBI” that routinely include high-speed car chases (and foot chases on “FBI”) that especially feature forensic investigative, pursuit and capture technology. Showrunners aren’t making this stuff up. Their production staffs obviously retain experienced expert consultants with state-of-the-art technical knowledge.

We and certain third parties may use cookies or similar technologies to process data when you visit our sites. This data may relate to your use of our sites, your preferences, your device, or other information about you. We and third parties may use this information for a variety of purposes, such as enabling the sites to function, to personalize your experience when using our sites, to provide you with advertisements based on your interests, and for analytical purposes. Privacy Policy surveillance security cameras in airports, stores, businesses, hospitals, homes and government buildings that Chicago PD and the FBI access to track where I've been and where I'm at.

RECOMMENDED STORIES

EDITORIAL: Mayor mediates Denver's data center dilemma

'CoCo' fails before it even hits the rails | Jimmy Sengenberger

Suzanne Taheri on the state SOS office's 'circus' | The OpEdge Podcast

We and certain third parties may use cookies or similar technologies to process data when you visit our sites. This data may relate to your use of our sites, your preferences, your device, or other information about you. We and third parties may use this information for a variety of purposes, such as enabling the sites to function, to personalize your experience when using our sites, to provide you with advertisements based on your interests, and for analytical purposes. Privacy Policy

Courtesy, Flock Safety

To make matters even worse, criminals have to contend with the dreaded Flock cameras, an invention of the Atlanta-based Flock Safety company whose crime-fighting systems are highly-valued by law enforcement agencies nationwide as force multipliers for solving homicides, kidnappings, assaults, vehicle thefts, jewelry store robberies, missing persons, human trafficking and more. It was a Flock camera in Boulder that quickly located the car and aided police in the arrest and conviction for murder of the Islamist antisemitic terrorist who firebombed a crowd on the Pearl Street Mall.

Flock's automated license plate readers, installed at intersections all over town with the consent of local governments across the country, photograph the plate and record details, including GPS locations, of every passing vehicle and compare the data to a "hot list" stored in the Flock system of all wanted plates nationwide. Local police can be notified of the hot

We and certain third parties may use cookies or similar technologies to process data when you visit our sites. This data may relate to your use of our sites, your preferences, your device, or other information about you. We and third parties may use this information for a variety of purposes, such as enabling the sites to function, to personalize your experience when using our sites, to provide you with advertisements based on your interests, and for analytical purposes. Privacy Policy

Despite the claims of anti-Flock paranoids, their cameras don't record your Social Security number or what takes place in the privacy of your bedroom.

One critic equated Flock's cameras with Big Brother's mass surveillance of the entire populace in George Orwell's classic dystopian novel, "1984." But BB's cameras were hidden in two-way TV screens in everyone's homes! Flock's cameras are only in public venues. As a law-abiding citizen who roots for the cops and FBI agents, I'm grateful for this modern technology. I have nothing to hide in public places. This technology makes me safer by helping to capture the robbers and other bad guys.

As for personal privacy, don't be naïve. We live in a technological era that already compromises much of our privacy through our own behavior in internet interactions with countless servicers, retailers, unknown scammers and on social media. We're easy prey for sophisticated computer and email hackers. Your only sanctuary is to become a recluse.

Another silly ploy of the anti-Flockers is to falsely invoke the Fourth Amendment's protection from unreasonable search and seizure, and the requirement of a warrant supported by a probable cause. This is beyond Flock's capabilities. And the Fourth Amendment isn't absolute; gray areas have forced many exceptions. Like allowing mass searching of travelers by TSA agents at airports without "probable cause." This is a rational tradeoff to protect travelers from getting blown up in flight by terrorists or crashing into the World Trade Center and Pentagon again. Will the next contrivance to handcuff crimefighters be outlawing fingerprinting and DNA evidence?

A large element of those who oppose Flock cameras are sanctuary-city activists who want open borders, and who coddle and defend illegal immigrants. They don't want data from those cameras to be shared with federal authorities like ICE because they don't want these

We and certain third parties may use cookies or similar technologies to process data when you visit our sites. This data may relate to your use of our sites, your preferences, your device, or other information about you. We and third parties may use this information for a variety of purposes, such as enabling the sites to function, to personalize your experience when using our sites, to provide you with advertisements based on your interests, and for analytical purposes. Privacy Policy

This is another example of the mentality of Denver's progressive prosecutors, judges and juries who pander to criminals at the expense of their victims. Like rewarding, with multimillion dollar settlements and awards, violent leftist protesters who intentionally attack and provoke police attempting to keep the peace.

Mike Rosen is a Denver-based American radio personality and political commentator.

Tag:

Flock Cameras

Surveillance

PREVIOUS STORY

Denver area events for Oct. 9

NEXT STORY

'CoCo' fails before it even hits the rails |
Jimmy Sengenberger

84°F

TODAY'S COVER

We and certain third parties may use cookies or similar technologies to process data when you visit our sites. This data may relate to your use of our sites, your preferences, your device, or other information about you. We and third parties may use this information for a variety of purposes, such as enabling the sites to function, to personalize your experience when using our sites, to provide you with advertisements based on your interests, and for analytical purposes. Privacy Policy

ARTS NEWS
Jeff Goldblum is headed to Denver to perform with Colorado Symphony. E1

BRONCOS
Bo Nix's yips will choke the team's Super Bowl dreams, Mark Kiszla writes. D1

ECONOMY
Federal Reserve officials expect another interest rate increase this year. C1

The Denver Gazette

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 2020

MOSTLY SUNNY • HIGH 85° LOW 50°

SENDING DENVER & THE METRO AREA • DENVERGAZETTE.COM

Voters wrongly sent 7A ballots

Roughly 800,000 sent ballots with passenger rail tax question

BY SCOTT WEISER
The Denver Gazette

County clerks in at least four metro Denver counties are scrambling to deal with the immediate confusion — and other potential ramifications — in the aftermath of some 800,000 voters receiving ballots with a sales tax like question they shouldn't be asked. Voters within the boundaries of the Front Range Passenger Rail District face a decision this November whether to establish a new 0.333% sales and use tax in order to generate $285 million a year and permit the jurisdiction to take on $580 million in debt to build

People carrying Israeli flags walk through an installation on the beachfront in Tel Aviv on Wednesday to mark the third anniversary of the Oct. 7, 2023, Hamas attack on Israel. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israelis mark three years since Hamas attack

1,400 killed in the past year since a U.S.-brokered ceasefire, which halted major fighting but has failed to stop Israeli attacks or secure the disarmament of Hamas. In the Gaza Strip, following three

Colorado remembers
Members and clergy of a Greenwood Village church hold an interfaith commemoration marking Oct. 7, 2010

KFAR AZA, ISRAEL • Israelis gathered in silence on Wednesday in a kibbutz near the Gaza border that was overrun by Hamas militants on Oct. 7 three years ago, mourning killed 1,200 people and took 251

SUBSCRIBERS

FLIP FOR YESTERDAY'S COVER

We and certain third parties may use cookies or similar technologies to process data when you visit our sites. This data may relate to your use of our sites, your preferences, your device, or other information about you. We and third parties may use this information for a variety of purposes, such as enabling the sites to function, to personalize your experience when using our sites, to provide you with advertisements based on your interests, and for analytical purposes. Privacy Policy

Suzanne Taheri on the state SOS office's 'circus' | The OpEdge Podcast

EDITORIAL: Let's hope a ballot boo-boo derails the choo-choo

GUEST OPINION: New Denver parking policies will backfire on business

GAS TRACKER

UPDATED DAILY

TODAY'S NATIONAL AVERAGE

$4.51 -$0.01

Price per gallon of regular unleaded in the U.S.

Change since Oct. 8, 2026 · Source: AAA

TRENDING NOW

Investigation into Nederland fire continues a year later

U.S. House: Colorado's 'sanctuary' policies threaten public safety

Lockheed Martin to bring 1,250 new jobs in Colorado expansion

New website makes it easier to book a spot at popular campsites

Man faces felony charge after allegedly killing bear near trail

We and certain third parties may use cookies or similar technologies to process data when you visit our sites. This data may relate to your use of our sites, your preferences, your device, or other information about you. We and third parties may use this information for a variety of purposes, such as enabling the sites to function, to personalize your experience when using our sites, to provide you with advertisements based on your interests, and for analytical purposes. Privacy Policy

Read Colorado from the people who live it.

GET FOR 3 MONTHS

Unlimited access to The Denver Gazette e-edition, web, and subscriber-only app.

Independent Colorado journalism, breaking news, sports, politics, business, opinion and the stories shaping the Front Range.

SECTIONS

News

OutThere Colorado

Business

Things To Do

About

Sports

Politics

Opinion

Obits

MORE

E-Edition

Newsletters

Account

Contact

DENVER GAZETTE

Contact Us

About Us

Terms of Service

Subscription Terms of Service

Privacy Policy

Your Privacy Choices

© 2026 THE DENVER GAZETTE

We and certain third parties may use cookies or similar technologies to process data when you visit our sites. This data may relate to your use of our sites, your preferences, your device, or other information about you. We and third parties may use this information for a variety of purposes, such as enabling the sites to function, to personalize your experience when using our sites, to provide you with advertisements based on your interests, and for analytical purposes. Privacy Policy