Hi Guys,

If you have newer sworn personnel asking for ALPR training so they can get their login to Flock, go ahead and give them the presentation we gave. We will give everyone an update training once it is ready.

Subject: Re: ALPR Meeting Notes

Hey guys, here is the final draft of the Flock ALPR Update Memo. I'm going to email it out tonight. If there are any last minute changes please let me know ASAP.

Moving forward, I will attend tonight's A-Team W4 lineup and go over it with them. I will also go over it with my A-Team W3 guys/girls tomorrow.

Andrew, if you could please go over the memo with A-Team W1 and W2 tomorrow I'd greatly appreciate it.

Josh, if you could go over this with B-Team W2, W3, and W4 on Saturday the 26th I'd greatly appreciate it. I think you may be coming in late on this so please call me if you have any questions about any of the memo.

We will figure out a time (possibly Monday the 28th) to go over this with B-Team W1.

Thanks for all your input and help. As always please let me know if you have any questions or concerns. Have a great rest of your week.

Sincerely,

One more item for the memo. Officers need to stat the use of ALPR in RIMS under Special Circumstances whenever they used it as part of their investigation regardless if it was helpful or not. I just reviewed a robbery case where a major part of the investigation focused on ALPR review and “None” was selected under Special Circumstances.

Can we also share that criminals know SMPD now utilizes ALPR technology and could plate their stolen vehicles to avoid detection? One strategy to overcome this would be to check stolen plate alerts and check DMV to see if it matches the year and make. From there, you can also copy and paste the VIN into Google to find out the model.

I just spoke with Andrew on the phone. Things I will add to the memo:

1. In report, articulate $ amount of vehicle
2. Clarify in memo that the driver of the 10851 should be charged with 496 unless extenuating circumstances (i.e. they can somehow prove they didn't have knowledge the car was stolen).
3. Add in memo to have officers add in our reports why officer believe the driver had knowledge (ie ignition punched, keys in possession, CII history).

Andrew - Sorry but just to clarify, if the driver of a 10851 is apprehended, and they lawyer up and don't say anything, my understanding is we charge the 496 section and not 10851, is that correct? Im not aware of the officer/case you are referring to but sounds like they maybe didn't take the driver out at gunpoint and there were other extenuating circumstances?

Mikhail - Between you, Andrew, Paul and myself, yes this email will go out and we will hit up lineups.

Great question with regards to people who have not been trained. I will add a line at the end of the email to ask ppl who have not been trained to reply back to the email and I'll formulate a list, then we can knock them out (or most of them) in just a few or so group trainings rather than 1 on 1.
